Don't make a mistake you trout fishermen and go after the beauties April 15, as you did last year. You may not catch them until May 1. Last year the season opened too early and closed too soon and there was more than a little complaint on the part of the fishermen. The fish would not bite so early and the law put an end to the sport when it was at its best. For that reason the last legislature changed the dates and the opening and closing days are both 15 days later. Remember, too that they must be seven inches long. The bass season opens June 15.

Uncle Al!

It is nice to be an uncle when one knows that his claim is legitimate but Albert Hidding finds that he is uncle to a great many individuals of whom he knows nothing. Irish, German, Dutch; yes, every nationality under the sun. This condition was brought about by a young lad, 15 years old, who went to the store of Notier, Van Ark and Winter last October and bought three pair of shoes. "Who are you my lad?" "My name is Johnson and I live at 54 E. 13th street. Please charge it to my uncle Al Hidding." "All right my lad."

Likewise he goes to Sluyter and Dykema and is charged under the name of Heddink with $1.80 in neckwear. Jake Kuite and De Kraker and De Koster each came in for 25 cents in 'wienies', while H. Wykhuizen sold him the engagement ring on tick. Uncle Al always being the nucleus for a line of credit.

B. Steketee, G. T. Haan and John Kramer were all pulled for merchandise even to a stick of licorice and Henry Mouw allowed the youth to make his gut away with a 'bike' with red mud guards. But like all crime 'Murder will out' as the saying goes and like the dog that knocked over the bee hive for honey, sweetmeats was his downfall. Our young friend must have sweets so he hies himself to J. C. Brown's confectionary store and makes Uncle Al, as all good uncles do, stand for a $1 bill in all day suckers, and that on election day too. But Brown was once upon a time an officer of the law, and a good judge of human nature, suspected the young man and called up 1130 which is the phone number of Uncle Al and the cat was out, and Albert soon lost a bunch of relatives which were not removed by the undertaker. The police were then called up and a diligent search made for Uncle Al's elusive relative, he was finally located in Zeeland under the name of John Hiddenga. Chief Kamferbeek gave him the "fourth degree" in the presence of Uncle Al who was scratching his head trying to place this affinity in the right category but he failed utterly. At last the young lad confessed and the case is being held in abeyance and the parents are being conferred with at the same time the corner grocery man has a new name, it is "Uncle Al."

Progress in Electric Farming

There is no longer any reason why even the farmer of moderate means should not enjoy all the home comforts of his city cousin. The day when bath tubs, lighting plants, water systems for fire protection and heating furnaces were to be found only in the larger villages and in cities has gone forever. Today there are few rural villages too small to boast of all these things and the farmer has caught the spirit of the times and his up to date farming house is lighted with electricity and heated by steam. It is supplied with fine bath rooms and running water and other modern conveniences.

A few years ago the electric light and power plants installed on farms were very few and far between. A few adventurous farmers had dared to harness their mountain pasture streams and turn their water energy into electricity for use about the house and barns; a few more had installed gasoline engines for the same purpose. These early installations proved a success from the first and it was not long before their worth had been talked and written about until almost every well to do farmer was considering the question of a similar installation.

Aside from the many benefits and economies of electricity for lighting, heating and cooking in the farm house, it readily assumes most of the hard work about the farm which in the past has been a most discouraging factor in securing farm labor. Electricity easily does the milking, separating and churning as well as turning the washing machine and the wringer. In the barn it is applied to feed cutters, corn shellers and to all other machinery, such as grindstone, lathe and a small buzz saw for cutting fire wood. The threshing machine and fanning mill are easily belted onto the portable motor. In Germany and a few other countries electricity is also used to advantage to pull the plows, rakes, harrows, cultivators, binders and other outdoor machinery.

In the house the farmer's wife can have her electric cooking devices as well as her city sister.

The number of electric plants on farms is increasing with marked rapidity. A few of these plants run by small water powers, but the majority use small gasoline engines and storage batteries. The time is surely coming when the majority of farmers will consider electricity a necessity and no matter how far they are located from electric power stations or power transmission lines, they will find means to secure plenty of cheap electricity. Many of the electrical engineers of the General Electric Co. predict that in a few more the power lines will extend out from the cities and large towns into the highways and byways where every farmer can tap the line and purchase at a very reasonable figure all the power he requires for his farm work.

CAME THROUGH DEATH VALLEY FAMOUS OLD ENGLISH CLOCK

Only Recorded Instance Where a Man Has Successfully Crossed Dread Spot on Foot.

Death valley is the most barren part of the great American desert. More men have died in its arid wastes than any other equal area of the world's surface, barring the great battle fields. It lies, a great sink in the sandy plain, about 250 miles north and east of Los Angeles, Cal., and within the boundaries of that state. The valley received its sinister name owing to the fact that in the early '50's a party of emigrants, some 220 in number, traveling overland by wagon from Salt Lake City, Utah, to Los Angeles, perished in its awful solitudes, barely a man escaping.

In the Wide World Magazine is given the story of a man who, alone and unaided, conquered Death valley in the hottest month of the desert year. The tale of awful suffering endured by this man, W. W. Mantion, of Rhylito, Cal., is told for the first time in his own words.

For almost a week Mantion was lost in the heart of Death valley. In three days he tramped 80 miles over sands so hot that he could scarcely walk on them, though shod with heavy shoes. During those never-ending days he had no food and but one drink of water.

When he staggered up to Cub Lee's Furnace Creek ranch, more dead than alive, his tongue was swollen to such a size that his mouth could no longer contain it. His lips and eyelids were cracked open; his clothing was in tatters, and his shoes were coated with a heavy incrustation of borax and other alkalines, which had eaten great holes in the leather.

At first he could not drink, and the touch of water was as fire to his parched lips and tongue. Kind-hearted ranchmen and miners forced the precious fluid into his mouth with a straw, with a spoon—any way to get him revived. And eventually he spoke, telling the strange story of his crossing the dread pit; of how he had wandered therein for many days with no companions save the lizards and the snakes of the barren sands.

HER IDEA OF STATESMANSHIP

And Just Wherein She Found Herself Unable to Agree with Senator Bailey.

Two handsomely gowned women were passing down a national capitol corridor, having been present in the senate during the delivery of Senator Bailey's speech.

"I am so glad," said the first lady, "that I was in the senate to-day. I had never heard Senator Bailey speak before."

"Isn't he fine?" said the other.

"He is indeed—so forcible, you know."

"But," remarked the second lady, "what was he talking about? Was he for or against something?"

"I don't know as to that, but I heard him say something about banks and money, and he didn't believe the government had the right to invite women to put pin money where the government could protect it against her husband."

"Did he say that? He is a horrid man. Why, I have a separate bank account already, and Mr. — don't dare touch it, and every woman should have her pin money protected, so there now."

The first lady assented to the conclusions drawn by her companion and branched off into recapitulating lunch engagements for the coming weeks.

Edelweiss Not a Rare Plant.

Gardeners are somewhat at a loss to understand, says the Field, why edelweiss should be thought so rare and therefore be so greatly sought after. It must be largely due to the fact that at one time very popular song concerning it.

At any rate, even if it be a rarity on the Alps it is quite a familiar plant in British gardens, where it may be grown either in the rock garden or in the border, being best suited by sandy soil.

It was introduced to this country in 1776 and is referred to in the Botanical Magazine for 1818 as being rare and difficult to cultivate, while the extraordinary suggestion is made that the plants should be covered to the depth of 18 inches with sawdust to take the place of their native snow.—London Globe.

Remarkable Surgical Operation.

A remarkable surgical operation has been performed by Dr. Morrison, at Queen's hospital, Birmingham, upon a man named Charles Endall, who had been suffering from a stricture of the gullet caused by having taken sulphuric acid in mistake for whisky. The man's throat having been closed, a new permanent mouth was opened in his side, through which he was fed by means of a tube. He gained weight, and was able to leave the institution, but gave way to drink, and died from exhaustion through stricture, hastened by bronchitis.

Not So Rare a Specimen.

A small boy in Yonkers recently became the proud possessor of a donkey—not so handsome or so young as it might have been. However, it answered the purpose of its acquisition, which was to afford back rides. One day the urchin was enjoying a ride when the minister of the parish met him. "Hello, sonny!" greeted the minister. "Quite a rare beast you have there." "Yes," replied the boy; "but I suppose there are a great many of 'em in the theological gardens."

Aged Astronomical Timepiece Around Which There Cling Many Superstitions.

Visitors at Hampton Court palace for the next few weeks will miss the famous astronomical clock, the dial of which has now been removed for repair and repainting. It is nearly thirty years since a similar work was undertaken. The old clock, which was the first astronomical timepiece in England and was made for King Henry VIII. in 1540, has a curious history. In 1880 it was brought out of a shed at the palace, where it had lain neglected for nearly half a century, and by order of the then secretary of the office of works it was re-erected in the court yard opposite the entrance to the state apartments.

According to Mr. Ernest Law, the historian of Hampton Court palace, the clock was invented by Nicholas Cratzer, a famous German astronomer, who came over to England by the invitation of Cardinal Wolsey, and who was introduced by him to Henry VIII. By the clock it is possible to ascertain the hour, the month, the day of the month, the position of the sun and the number of days since the beginning of the year, phases of the moon and its age, the hour at which it crosses the meridian and the time of high water at London bridge. The winding of the clock occupies half an hour every week. The weights descend to a depth of over sixty feet.

Like many other things about the palace, there are legends about the clock. It is related that when Anne of Denmark, queen of James I., died at Hampton court the clock, which was striking four at the moment, immediately stopped. It is also alleged to have done so ever since whenever anyone long resident in the palace died within its precincts, and superstitious people quote many cases of its more recent occurrence.—London Chronicle.

DRAWN UP INTO THE SKY

The Only Explanation for the Disappearance of the Water from the Dead Sea.

There can be only two modes by which the waters flowing into the Dead sea can escape from it—either by underground percolation or by evaporation. It is extremely improbable that any considerable quantity escapes by the former mode, and we are further led to suppose, for two good reasons, that evaporation accounts for maintaining the steady level of that sea. First, the sea remains intensely salt. The Dead sea contains about five times as much solids in solution as does the ocean. This intense saltiness could not be maintained with comparatively fresh river water pouring into it for thousands of years, unless the water in escaping, left behind the saline substances. Evaporation is the only process that would account for this. Secondly, the heat in the Dead sea valley is overpowering. The temperature in the Jordan valley has been known to rise in August to 118 degrees, even opposite Jericho, and it would be even higher in the Dead sea gorge. George Adams Smith, in his Historical Geography of the Holy Land (p.500), says: "The extracted moisture usually forms a haze impenetrable to the eye for more than a few miles, but sometimes vast clouds of mist rear themselves from the sea."

Wedding Over a Coffin.

A peculiar wedding ceremony was that which took place at Lewiston, Pa., one day lately, when, with hands joined over the casket in which lay the body of the bride's father, Miss Lillian Lewis and Edwin S. Eby were married by Rev. W. L. Mudge, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

It had been the one wish of Mr. Lewis that he might live to see his daughter the wife of Eby, but a few days before the wedding he was suddenly taken ill and died.

The young couple had been engaged for some time, and at the request of the bride the wedding took place in the darkened parlor of the Lewis home, where lay the body of her father. Rev. Mr. Mudge, a friend of the Lewis family, was called, and before preaching the funeral service performed the wedding ceremony amid the tears of relatives.

Youthful Teacher's Bravery.

The brave action of a girl teacher was publicly noticed at a recent meeting of Scarborough (Eng.) town council. Miss Smith was in a room with a class of 40 children, none over five years of age. One boy had in his pocket some Bengal lights. Suddenly his clothes burst into flames. Miss Smith at once called the children to order to prevent panic and then seizing hold of the screaming child wrapped him in her dress and put out the flames with her hands. But for her presence of mind the child would undoubtedly have lost his life. Then she ran with the child to its mother and collapsed. Her hands and arms were badly blistered and her dress burnt, but the child was saved.

It Happens.

The Woman—Here's a wonderful thing. I've just been reading of a man who reached the age of 40 without learning how to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made a scholar of himself in two years!

The Man—That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at 40. Then he met a woman, and for her sake he made a fool of himself in two days!

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Near the End of a Chapter

The year which brings the count of the country's inhabitants has a peculiar interest for most of us. It will tell us the growth of the decade and will point out to us the relative place which we hold among the world's people. That year is here now, and, so the census authorities inform us, the count will begin on April 15. Quicker work is promised than we have seen thus far, for by June 1, according to present plans, we are to know the grand secret. Guesses among the census experts as to the aggregate population range from 88,000,000 to 91,000,000 for the continental part of United States, as compared with 76,000,000 in 1900.

In any case the United States will be found to be the most populous of the countries except China and Russia. It will be far in the lead of both of those countries in volume and variety of activities. In wealth it will exceed China and Russia combined, twice over. Practically this will be the growth of a century only, for in 1810 the country's population was 7,000,000. Pennsylvania has more people today than the entire country had a hundred years ago. New York has several hundred thousand more inhabitants than the whole United States had at the time of the inauguration of the country's first president in 1789. Millions of people remember the year of Lincoln's election, yet the country's population has almost tripled in that half a century.

Thus, in the story of our national life, we are near the end of a chapter. The tale is a serial—one that, so far as we know, will never be finished. Possibly somewhere in the future the cataclysm may come to us like that which came to Assyria, Babylon and other countries of antiquity, like that which came in historic time Odoacer, with his Germanic mercenaries, in 476, upset the shadow throne of the "Little Augustus" and closed the career of the Roman Empire. With historic time events have written "Finis" in the story of Poland, Venice, Ireland, and many other countries, as independent peoples. If such a fate is reserved for us it is so far in the shadow that we of the twentieth century are not called upon to concern ourselves with it. A few weeks hence another "To be continued in our next" will write itself for us, some secrets now hidden will be revealed, a new leaf in our story will be turned, and another decade's issues and mysteries will begin to shape themselves.

Every little while somebody arises even in Holland, who claims to be an heir to property worth hundreds of millions of dollars in the heart of some big city. Have you ever heard of this kind who got the money?

One evening last week the people of Chicago enjoyed the pleasure of a beautiful mirage over Lake Michigan. It was shortly before 6 o'clock when the phenomenon was noticed, a dim, hazy picture of some place in Michigan, with buildings and smoke stacks and smoke showing dimly, but with outline traceable in the hazy distance, just above the horizon and extending for miles, lying off in the direction of southeast by east. There was a gray blue strip with a glow of light in it just above the sky line. Out from the shadow the forms of houses, big buildings and factories arose, outlined against the grayish blue background of sky. Above the buildings were clouds of smoke. The scene lasted until it was obscured by darkness.

Hamilton Man Look for Carnegie Metal

J. Y. Boyle of Hamilton was in Allegan last week and came into the Gazette office to look over the files of the papers. He was looking for the account of the rescue by his brother Charles (who also lives in Hamilton) of John Miscotten from the river in March 1893. He found the item and will send it with other proofs to the Carnegie hero commission in an effort to receive a reward of money for his brother. It was during the first week of March in that year that Miscotten, the well known Hamilton farmer, and ex-sheriff John Strabbing were standing on the Rabbit river bridge at Hamilton when it was carried away by the high water. Strabbing got out of the water easily but Miscotten was with difficulty saved. Persons who remember the accident say that had it not been for the work of Charles Boyle who, by the means of a long pikepole, was able to get to the drowning man after he had disappeared twice in the icy waters, he would have drowned. He was unconscious when rescued and with difficulty revived. Boyle was a log runner and accustomed to the water, and saved the man when others did not dare try to do so. He is at present in poor health and has not too much of this world's goods. Allegan Gazette.

Holland Won Contest

School spirit and student enthusiasm ruled supreme at the Congregational church Friday night when four high schools strove for the honors in the sub-district oratorical and declamation contests. Holland high captured first place in both oratorical and the declamation contests. Burt Bouwman the winning orator, made a decidedly good impression from the moment he began to speak. His oration was well prepared and contained consistent thought. His voice was naturally good and his delivery was excellent calling out enthusiastic applause from even his rivals. Mr. Bouwman's subject was "A Phase of Social Evolution" a subject with almost unlimited material and an unbounded field of thought. The winner had made the most of the opportunities. Holland also won the declamation contest by excellent work on the part of Frances Bosch, whose declamatory address was well received by the large audience.

Grand Haven high school represented by Edward Courner captured second place in the oratorical contest. The Grand Haven orator was very close to the winner in the minds of the judges and the final decision was not made without considerable difficulty. The title of his oration was "America's Peril." The Grand Haven representative made an excellent showing and was cheered enthusiastically by his schoolmates.

Isabel Taylor of Muskegon was declared the winner of the second honors in the declamation contest, and the decision of the judges was greeted with cheers from the Muskegon section.

Ralph Benedict of Muskegon and Ruth Tubbs of Otsego, were the orators, and Hilma Swanty of Otsego and Laura Norcross of Grand Haven were the declamatory contestants who made an excellent showing but did not gain the coveted places.

The interior of the church was an inspiring sight for those who are interested in youth, energy and enthusiasm. The auditorium was decorated with banners and streamers representing the contesting schools. The penants of Michigan, Harvard, Yale, Chicago, Pensy, and dozens of other great institutions, hung side by side in a blaze of color.

L. H. Vandenberg, superintendent of the Grand Haven schools, presided as chairman. The program was opened by a selection by the high school orchestra. The Rev. Vander Meulen pronounced the invocation. Following the four declamations the girl's glee club of the high school sang. The orchestra closed the program with a selection from the Soul Kiss.

The judges in last night's contest were Judge Absit of Grand Rapids, Prof. J. B. Nykerk of Hope college, Supt. Winter of Spring Lake.

Political Notes

Peter Brusse, former register of deeds of the county, was in the city on business Monday. Mr. Brusse is seriously considering jumping into the race for the nomination of register of deeds again this fall at the Republican county primaries. Grand Haven Tribune.

John F. Van Antwoy of this city has announced his candidacy for Register of Deeds. John was unanimously elected supervisor for the second district last week. A. J. Ward is also a candidate for this office for a third term.

Louis Oosterhouse new city attorney of Grand Haven and the law partner of Walter I. Lillie, is a candidate for prosecuting attorney. He is popular in his home town and has worked his way up from the bottom.

It is authoritatively rumored from a friend of Mr. Stephan that he will be a candidate for Sheriff this fall. Mr. Stephan feels that graft is not yet entirely eliminated from this office and in becoming sheriff he intends bringing about such reforms as have been advocated by him some time past. He also thinks that the promiscuous appointing of deputies should be abolished and fewer but better ones should be deputized to handle the work.

Fred McEachron bought himself a Reo in Lansing this week. This will, no doubt assist him in making another run for county clerk this fall.

Benj. Van Raalte has been mentioned as candidate on the republican ticket for legislator of the First district in Ottawa to take the place of his uncle the late D. B. K. Van Raalte. Ben is an energetic worker and has ability as a speaker and no doubt his candidacy will meet with the approval of the majority of Ottawa county republicans.

Albert Hidding has been mentioned for sheriff but not this term.

The official figures on the vote for the nomination of county officers in Ottawa county have been compiled. The total vote on the proposition was 5390 for and 3787 against it, giving a majority of 2184 in favor of the primary system. On the proposition of nominating circuit judges by popular vote 5503 votes were cast, 3941 in favor and 1562 against, a majority of 2379 in favor of the proposition.

Diekema Looks Out for Holland

Representative G. J. Diekema appeared before the ways and means committee recently and made an argument in favor of making Holland a sub-port of entry. In 1898 the treasury department reported against congress taking such action. After hearing the statement of Mr. Diekema the members of the committee gave directions that the arguments should be forwarded to the treasury officials with instructions to examine the data and make report thereon. The bill which Mr. Diekema has introduced is strongly backed by Mr. Lillie, collector of the port at Grand Haven. Senator Burrows has already introduced a similar bill in the senate, which is now before the finance committee.

Will Pay $1,100 for Single Birds

In a recent article appearing in the News and one that created a great deal of comment was that which told of the disappearance of the wild pigeon that inhabited Michigan by the millions. Now the American Ornithologists union of New York is sending out notices of rewards which that society will pay for the discovery of a single one of these birds. The reward calls for $1,100 to be paid to any person who discovers one or more of these practical extinct species of birds.

These pigeons look much like the common mourning dove and the western band tailed pigeon but are larger and of higher color, and those wishing to assist in saving the birds and getting the reward should send to the society for descriptive matter which will dispel any possibility of error in identification. Such persons should address Charles K. Reed, Worcester, Mass. The story of the extermination of these birds is a matter of history. The least any of us of the present generation can do is to assist in the saving of what birds we have, if, indeed, any can be found. The last authentic record of any considerable flight of pigeons was in the spring of 1888, when a flock, estimated as covering more than eight acres, swept north through Michigan. The nesting of this flock was not discovered.

One of the largest nestings recorded was one near Petoskey, Mich., in 1876. It extended for twenty-eight miles and averaged three to four miles wide. Throughout this track every tree of any size had one or more nests and some were filled with them. They were all above 15 feet from the ground.

Many pigeons were shot but the bulk of them were caught in nets placed near their nesting or roosting. These nets were six or eight feet wide and from fifteen to thirty feet in length. The pigeons were baited to them and usually a steel pigeon was used for a decoy. The largest number recorded at one catch was more than 1,300 birds. This netting occurred in all the states from Massachusetts to Wisconsin. From one of the Michigan nestings several millions of the birds were killed and shipped each season. These birds were barreled and sent to New York and Boston markets and often sent abroad. The netters got from two to six cents for them. Each man strove to outdo his neighbor in the number of birds taken, consequently none of them got much out of the miserable enterprise, but they did almost wipe out one of the most abundant species of bird.

Miss Cathrine Countiss and her company at the Majestic theater in Grand Rapids, will offer for the second week of her season, commencing Sunday evening, April 17, Hall Caine's powerful play "The Christian." Miss Countiss and her support have been heartily welcomed back to Grand Rapids for her second season. "The Climbers" which is being offered this week, as a result, is playing to crowded houses.

"The Christian" is particularly appropriate at this time. Miss Countiss starred in the play in the role of Glory Quayle, for an entire year, and has also appeared in it in Boston, Baltimore, Denver, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and elsewhere in her own stock organization. Her support will include the members of the company who are already favorites, with Allan Murnane, the new leading man in the opposite role of John Storm.

No more dramatic scene can be imagined than that wherein John Storm, deeply religious, imagines that he should murder Glory Quayle his beloved, because she is in danger of losing her soul through the wickedness of this world. It affords Miss Countiss an exceptional opportunity to demonstrate her worth as an emotional actress.

"The Christian" has not been seen in Grand Rapids for five years. There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Patrons of the Majestic theater who desire to see Miss Countiss in every one of her plays during her season, may secure the same seats each week by making application at the box office.

OCCURRENCE OF HAILSTORMS

Violent Vertical Disturbances Responsible for the Showers of Frozen Rain.

Hail storms occur most frequently during the heated season, and during that part of the day when the vertical disturbances of the atmosphere is greatest. These heated areas, and violent vertical disturbances of the atmosphere are more likely to occur over land than over water, owing to the fact that land becomes heated more rapidly during the day than does a body of water. Hail is supposed to be formed by the congealing of rain or vapor carried up to a great height by a rapid vertical movement of the air. At a certain point in its ascent, after being congealed, the ice particles are thrown out from the center upon a stratum of air ascending less rapidly. Here they fall, and in their descent increase in mass by condensing vapor on their surfaces. As they descend they are sucked into the ascending vortex again, and by this process grow sometimes to enormous dimensions before finally reaching the ground. It may be seen, therefore, that hail is less likely to occur over a watered area than over a land area. And especially is this so in northern latitudes, where the waters are cold and are likely to retard vertical currents of any intensity. Although hail is most likely to be produced over land, it may be precipitated with greater frequency over, or in the near neighborhood of water, since the upward air current over water is sufficiently moderate in velocity to allow the precipitation of hail. That is the only way in which water can be said to attract hail storms. In a northern latitude there are fewer and less violent hailstorms over an area partly watered than over a waterless area.

UNHURT AFTER LONG FALL

Almost Miraculous Escape of Miner Who Fell to Pit's Bottom, a Distance of 259 Feet.

A wonderful escape from death occurred at a Staffordshire (Eng.) colliery the other day.

A young man named Phillip Shenton, whilst working at a new inset, went to load a tub into the cage, which he thought was waiting in the shaft. As a matter of fact, however, the cage had not descended to the intake, and Shenton, instead of pushing the tub into the cage, pushed it into the empty space of the pit shaft. Having hold of the tub, and being taken by surprise, Shenton was also dragged after the truck, and fell headlong down the shaft, a distance of 259 feet.

The tub and man were precipitated into the well at the bottom of the shaft, which contained water to a considerable depth. Everyone, of course, concluded that Shenton had met an instant and terrible death, but to the amazement of those who witnessed the accident, a voice was presently heard from the inky depths calling for help. The cage was at once lowered, and the man was able to scramble into it.

When taken to the surface it was found he had escaped with a slight cut on the head.

Tragedy of a Gypsy's Curse.

An extraordinary story of a gypsy's curse and the tragic sequel to it is reviewed by the news of the death of Mrs. Frances Octavia Addison at Riga. She was the widow of Charles Greenstreet Addison. Mr. Addison was one of the four sons of a Kentish squire, who was cursed one night while standing on his lawn, by a Romany seer. The malediction declared that neither the squire nor any of his sons should die in bed. The gypsy's prophecy came true. The squire was killed in the hunting field. The eldest son was mortally wounded in India. The second son was asphyxiated upon Vesuvius. Charles Greenstreet Addison died suddenly in his drawing room. The other, Dr. William Addison, F.R.S., lay ill in his house at Brighton. When an old colleague came to play a customary game at chess one afternoon the patient had risen, and was found dead in his armchair with the chess-board ready for action before him.

Move to Protect Seals.

Steps have at last been taken by the government of the Falkland Islands to stop the indiscriminate slaughter of seals and penguins on the islands of their dependencies. Up to the present the seal rookeries of the Falklands have been at the mercy all the year round of every foreign sealing vessel that chose to invade them and the slaughter that has been going on for years in consequence has nearly exterminated the seals. Similarly, the killing of penguins, usually for the sake of the plumage and the large quantity of fat which each bird affords, has almost denuded the islands of these interesting specimens of their fauna. Two bills have now been introduced into the legislative council—one to regulate the seal fishery in the islands and the other to provide for the preservation of the penguins.

Shipload of Girls Come to Marry.

Among the second cabin passengers arriving on the Cunard liner Ivernia at Boston the other day were more than one hundred young women from England and Ireland, many of whom declared that they had come here purposely to wed. The first one to meet her sweetheart was Miss Mary Greaves, a striking brunette from Oldham, Eng. William Alexander Abbott, Worcester, had paid for her passage here and was provided with a marriage license when he met her as she stepped off the gangplank.

"Where You Do The Best"

And That Ended, Recriminating Senators Speedily Forget Their Differences.

The late John J. Ingalls, senator from Kansas, let loose in the senate one day about Conkling, Hancock and several other distinguished people. His remarks were particularly severe. Joe Blackburn, then senator from Kentucky, was chosen to answer Ingalls, and he took a good deal of hide off the brilliant Kansan. In one paragraph Blackburn said: "And this man has the temerity to assail Hancock—Hancock the Superb—who was giving of his life's blood on the heights of Gettysburg while the senator from Kansas was skulking along behind a regiment of Kansas jayhawkers, trying those jayhawkers in the capacity of judge advocate for robbing hen roosts."

There was more of the same kind, and everybody thought there would be trouble, inasmuch as Ingalls was high spirited and Blackburn unafraid.

After the senate adjourned Blackburn and Ingalls met, face to face, in the corridor in front of the marble room. A dozen spectators looked for carnage.

Ingalls stopped, looked squarely into Blackburn's eyes and Blackburn glared back.

"Joe," said Ingalls, putting out his hand, "isn't this cruel war over?"

"It is," said Blackburn, taking the offered hand, and they went off arm in arm.—Saturday Evening Post.

PECULIAR VISION OF FISH

Hypothesis That Seems to Explain the Constant Revolution of the Eyeball.

The medium in which fresh-water fishes live gives them a chance to see a great distance only in the horizontal direction. It seems impossible to explain the constant revolution of the eyeball on any other hypothesis except that the optical axis extends forward instead of sidewise.

When a fish wishes to eat anything, either at the bottom of the pond or at the surface of the water, it swims directly toward the object; and in this case the eyes are instantly adjusted in line with the body, so as to bring the image of the particle desired upon the posterior portion of the retina. In this case they lose their horizontal position.

If a fish wishes to turn to the right or left in the water, the first movement is that of the eyes in unison in the direction of the turning. This would be entirely unnecessary if the apparent axis was the axis of the most distinct vision, as one of the eyes would see all that was to be seen on the side of the turning. After this movement of the eyes, the body turns enough to bring the eyes into their normal position, then there is again a movement of the eyes, and next a movement of the body. This causes a peculiar jerking motion of the eyeballs during the whole time of the turning of the body.

Proud of His Prospects.

Louis Pierre was one of a number of Canadian immigrants who settled at Fitzgerald, Ga. As he spoke both French and English, he rapidly became a man of importance, and was successively elected to the offices of city marshal, coroner and justice of the peace.

A dispute arose between the French and English settlers as to the superiority of the United States over the Canadian provinces. They finally agreed to leave the decision to Judge Pierre, who handed down this decision:

"Yoost tage a look at me. First dey mage me constabul, den coroner, und now joostis of de pees. Soon I be ze governair, den senator, den president. I woud be ze long time in Canadaire fore dey mage me queen."—Circle Magazine.

A Polytheist.

"When the late Bishop Foss was president of America seminary," said an aged Methodist of Philadelphia, "I once heard him deliver an interesting Easter address on heathenism and idolatry."

"Bishop Foss showed us, with a little story, the bad effect that the many gods of polytheism has upon the mind. 'He said a little English boy living in India was rebuked by his mother for telling a falsehood.

"God, if you tell falsehoods, will be very angry with you," said the mother.

"Very well," the youngster answered. "Then I will change my god."

Blessed Illusions.

Thank heaven that a little illusion is left to us, to enable us to be useful and agreeable—that we don't know exactly what our friends think of us—that the world is not made of looking glass, to show us just the figure we are making, and just what is going on behind our backs! By the help of dear friendly illusion, we are able to dream that we are charming—and our faces wear a becoming air of self-possession; we are able to dream that other men admire our talents—and our benignity is undisturbed; we are able to dream that we are doing much good—and we do a little.—George Eliot.

Boisterous Mirth.

"What makes you laugh so loudly whenever Bliggins tells a funny story?"

"In self-defense. I want to make so much noise he can't tell another."

HOW HEARING IS AFFECTED

Two Theories as to the Effect of Artillery Practice on Auditory Apparatus.

A writer in a recent number of Le Nature, M. Ghastang, gives some interesting facts with regard to artillery practice in the French navy, and shows an inclination to favor the supposition, which we do not remember to have seen mentioned before, that in many instances injury to the auditory apparatus from the discharge of cannon is really due rather to aspiration than to concussion, says a writer in the New York Medical Journal.

It seems that on the schoolship as many as from 700 to 1,000 charges are fired at a seance, presumably in rather quick succession. Thus an immense amount of gas generated by the combustion of the powder is produced, and this (in some way that does not appear clear to us) leads to such rarefaction of the air of the deck that it is suction instead of impact that injures the ear. The author finds support for this supposition in the fact that plugs of cotton inserted into the auditory canal are often found to have been wholly or in part withdrawn by the firing.

He admits, however, that persons standing very close to the gun are injured by concussion, as has commonly been supposed.

OF MUCH VALUE TO SURGEONS

"Stomach Telescope" Has Been Found Useful in Almost Endless Variety of Ways.

The "stomach telescope," or gastroscope, invented at the London hospital, has proved to be of the greatest value in the diagnosis of stomach disorders. An eminent surgeon recently referred in the highest terms to the advances lately made at that hospital in the early detection of diseases of the stomach by means of this instrument, which will in the immediate future probably come to be part of the equipment of every up-to-date hospital. The gastroscope now enables the physician or surgeon to actually see for himself the exact condition of the whole of the interior of the stomach, the slightest ulceration, growth or other abnormality in the lining membrane being thus readily observed. To be able to do this is of the very greatest importance in suspected cancer of the stomach, where the only hope of cure lies in the eradication of the cancerous growth at the very earliest moment. This means that the increased use of the gastroscope will in the future save many lives that would otherwise inevitably be lost through that disease.

Fine Fox Hunt Without Witnesses.

The East Essex hounds had a remarkable run recently. A fox which they had hunted through the village of Bradwell swam the Blackwater, and the pack followed, but the depth of water and the dangerous banks prevented the field from crossing. They had to go for two miles along the bank until they reached a bridge, and by the time they had crossed fox and pack had vanished. After a search of three hours the hounds were found ten miles from the place where they had crossed the river whimpering round a barn at Chalkey Wood, beneath which the fox had gone to earth.

Mr. R. D. Hill, the master, called the hounds off and gave the fox a respite for the splendid run he had given. "The best 50 minutes the East Essex have had this season," was the description of Cockayne, the huntsman, "although there was no one riding with the hounds and no whiteness of their performance."—London Evening Standard.

For the Children.

The mother who believes in beginning the artistic education of her children at the earliest possible moment, may do a great deal in that direction with the aid of the nursery walls. The sides of the room are first papered with some plain neutral color, then divided into a frieze and panels, outlined with the darkest shade of the chosen neutral tint and upon these subdivisions are pasted brightly colored and well-drawn figures of animals and birds, which are to be obtained in the form of long sheets of wall paper, which may easily be cut out and affixed to the walls. Thus a young child may not only be taught much that is essential in regard to the proper placing of colors and their composition, but because of the questions which they will be apt to ask about the animals and birds, will acquire a great deal of valuable information about natural history.

A Desperate Subterfuge.

"Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, "can I eat anything I find growing on a tree and still be a consistent vegetarian?"

"Certainly."

"Oh, joy! I notice that a lot of our chickens have taken to roosting in the woods."

Impossible.

"Losing at poker again? I found these two aces in your pocket!" stormed his wife.

"Losing with two aces in my pocket? Absurd, woman!" he retorted.

Not Our Language.

"Your wife says your youngest baby can talk."

"Yes," answered Mr. Bliggins, with a slight hesitation. "But he appears to take naturally to something like Volapuk or Esperanto."

VERY LIKE BUSINESS MATTER

Little Romance in Many of the Marriages Contracted by German Couples.

From the beginning the little German girl is trained to matrimony. "Eat your fish fresh and marry your daughter while she is young," runs the German proverb. The girl, coming from a race of practical-minded, deft-handed people with a counter-balance of idealism, has her dreams of a fairy prince. They dwindle and fade in the face of realities till at last she is glad to marry a sober business man from 10 to 30 years her senior. This discrepancy in years is due to the circumstance that a man in Germany, according to government regulations, must spend so many years in preparation for his profession that by the time he is able to support a wife he is at the age when an American man has already made the initial success of his career. But men and women are anxious enough to marry.

When other hope falls some of them advertise, for many German newspapers have a kind of marriage market in their columns. Such advertisements read:

"I am still young, strong, and with a fortune of 12,000 marks. How shall I go about getting a husband? Kind advice sought by — and so on."

"A Jewish lady of 25, beautiful, with a dowry of 200,000 marks, would like to marry a man of title and good family. She would be willing to be baptized into his religion. A meeting must be arranged for in a dignified manner."

"The manager of a good business would like to marry a pretty widow, very strong, weighing about 180, but of good figure, and with a fortune of a few thousand marks."

POISE OF TROUT AND KESTREL

Both the Fish and Bird Present Alluring Sight to the Lover of Beauties of Nature.

As the kestrel is to the clouds so is the trout to the crystal waters. Both kestrels and trout display that magical poising, as if suspended by invisible threads—only now and then, when cross currents are encountered, is a sign given to show that life itself is not in suspense.

A brief agitation of the kestrel's wings, a swishing of the trout's tail—the cross current is weathered, and bird or fish poises motionless again. And as when walking along we are pulled up in ever fresh wonder by the sight of the hovering kestrel, so we must needs pause on a bridge when there is a trout in the stream below.

He looks his best poising with head to the stream—a shapely form against the background of smooth brown pebbles and waving emerald weeds. Lean over the bridge with eyes on the trout, a vision is conjured—an alluring fly drops on the water, then a slack line tightens, there is a song from the reel, a rod bends; there follows a dazzling dance of vermilion spots against the green of the bank.

Or as we come to the bridge on a winter's day we think we hear a mighty splashing of water over the pebbles—which turns out to be the play of 30 or 40 trout—the play of the last round of some water tourney. As they come to the surface, rolling and wallowing—their great fat sides look twice as big as when seen through the clear water—they almost make a dam across the stream as they jostle each other seeking for the choicest places on the spawning bed.

Life's Lessons.

An old gentleman, well on in years, sits handsomely and naturally in the bow-window of his age, scanning experience with reverted eye; and, chirping and smiling, communicates the accidents and reads the lesson of his long career. Opinions are strengthened, indeed, but they are also weeded out in the course of years. What remains steadily present to the eye of the retired veteran in his hermitage, what still ministers to his content, what still quickens his old honest heart—these are "the real long-lived things"—that Whitman tells us to prefer. Where youth agrees with age, not where they differ, wisdom dies, and it is when the young disciple finds his heart to beat in tune with his gray-bearded teacher's that a lesson may be learned.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Poultry Point.

"Always ask for the right leg of chicken or turkey," said a chef. "If the left leg is offered you, refuse it. It will be tough and stringy."

"You see, these birds nearly always roost on one leg, the left. Hence, that leg becomes very muscular. The sinews are like steel. It is an excellent leg from the athletic, but a vile one from the culinary point of view. But the favored right leg remains tender and juicy. Therefore, as the advertisements say, ask for and insist on getting the right leg."

Proclaims His Feelings.

Without the doctor and my better half I have my doubts whether there would have been an opportunity to write this, and this reminds me to say that, against protestations, I'm prepared to say, there is no easement to the afflicted and no satisfaction so intensely intense as when you are sick and pain seems unbearable to let your voice proclaim the feeling. Stoicism is very noble, to be sure, but when nature demands the tribute of a hearty groan or grunt from a sufferer she is apt to revenge herself if it is suppressed.—Ocala Star.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

This new and wonderful science had its origin in Bohemia. It was used in that country by workmen who had labored hard and came home tired and ill. It would revive them and at that time they discovered that chronic diseases of long standing were subdued under its treatment and finally disappeared altogether but the best of it was that the cures made in that way would be permanent.

Chiropractic or hand curing has no nasty tasting medicine—it does not need it. It will cure troubles that will not submit to drugs. It needs no knife and no operations to aid it. It is a treatment that effects the nerves.

Chiropractic is based on a correct knowledge of the nerves. In the human spine are 24 vertebrae each one having an inter-vertebrae notch, and these two brought together create a window (foramen) from which bundles of nerves emanate, spreading to all parts of the human system a luxation or displacement which causes the nerves to be pinched and disease to follow. They may be stimulated but will not be cured unless these nerves are released. The Chiropractors fix these luxations, relieve the nerves and put them in a position to do their great work throughout that part which was affected.

If you have trouble and have taken medicine until you resemble a walking delegate for the drug store go to an experienced Chiropractor, let him examine you and he will explain your trouble. Do not think there is no cure for you. Thousands have thought that and have been agreeably surprised at the healing power of Chiropractic.

Epilepsy, Deafness, Apoplexy; Appendicitis, Blood diseases, Brain fever, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bladder Troubles, Catarrh, Cancer, Constipation, Consumption (first stages) Dyspepsia, Heart, Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles, Indigestion, Lumbago, Lost Manhood, Locomotor Ataxia, Nervous debility, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Varicocele, St. Vitus dance, Female disease and many others have been cured to stay cured.

If you are sick remember the cause is within you. If you have been taking drugs and are satisfied that you are getting worse go to a Chiropractor and get well. A pinning plant will not get strength by sprinkling the leaves, but by removing the cause from the roots—origin of its living power. The nerves control the human system.

W. H. Roe, D. C. and R. R. Pronk, D. C. are experienced Chiropractors, who have offices at 147 East 8th St. Holland, Mich., and also 9 Jefferson avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich. They have made some wonderful cures in Holland and in the surrounding country; go to them, they are willing to give you names and addresses from some of the people they have treated. Their office hours are 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m., and 7 to 8:30 in the evening. They will give you all the information and advise you wish without charge. Some of our well known citizens who give praise to them are Mrs. C. M. Knowels and Mrs. A. W. Nysson at Central Park, R. F. D. No. 1, they wish you to call on them, and would be happy to tell you what has been done for them.

Death of Mrs. Breyman

Mrs. Sarah Breyman who had been ill for some time died Sunday night at her home, corner Central avenue and Graves Place, aged 74 years. In the passing away of Mrs. Breyman, Holland loses another of its pioneers. She was the wife of the late Otto Breyman, for many years alderman of this city and who had been a member of the jewelry firm of Joslin & Breyman, the firm he afterward conducted himself. He was also for a long time in charge of the American Express Co. office here and was also treasurer of the South Ottawa & West Allegan Fair Assn.

Mrs. Breyman was married in 1855, coming to this city in 1867. She is survived by six children, Mrs. Anna Schecker of Milwaukee, Wm. of Grand Rapids, Henry of St. Louis, Mo., Fred of San Francisco, Mrs. Percy Ray and August of this city. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Ray, Rev. F. O. Grannis officiating.

Inter-Collegiate Debate

Having been whipped last year both at Alma and at home by Olivet and Alma teams, the Hope college debaters took a brace last Friday and won the debates about the income tax both at home and at Olivet. Heenstra, Vis, and de Motts were exceptionally strong in the presentation of the arguments and well grounded in the question which gave them no slight advantage over their Alma opponents whose presentation of the arguments was far from forceful. Van Thurm of Alma starred for his college while Heenstra who was strong in both argumentation and rebuttal upheld the honor of the local institution. The judges' decision at Hope was 2 to 1 in favor of the college.

At Olivet Luidens, Abbink and Dame. In his rebuttal Luidens rose to a point of privilege and managed to drive Royal of Olivet out of one of his points, because of a fluky statement. The judges' decision at Olivet also was 2 to 1 in favor of the visiting locals.

Arrested Many at Newaygo

Chas. K. Hoyt, Doorabos, deputy game warden has returned from Newaygo where they with other deputies arrested many violators of the fish laws, who were catching brook trout in the river with dipnets. Six were convicted and the cases of others will be taken up later. The county has a fish law which forbids fishing with anything except a hook and line and those arrested were violators of both the county and the state regulations.

The big cement plant at Newaygo has built a monster dam in the river there and neglected to put in the chute required by law for the protection of fish. The state has ordered this work done at once and the chute will be completed in a short time. Now, however Mr. Hoyt says the people along the river are treated to a wonderful sight when the trout attempt to get up over the dam. The fish wriggle up against the current as far as possible and then leap for the dam. They always fail to make it and fall back into the stream to be swept away by the current.

Notes of Sport

Michigan Agricultural College last Saturday afternoon won the handsome Holland Business Men Trophy in the annual cross country race in which teams from Olivet, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Hope participated.

Tillason of M. A. C. ran a splendid race finishing the ragged four and a half mile course in the record time of 21:15. The race started at 2 o'clock when Coach Tupples of Muskegon sent the thirty runners on their way. The Muskegon youngster set off at a terrific pace for the first mile but gradually the M. A. C. and Olivet runners crept up and led well when the Waverly parture were reached.

An immense crowd watched the runner turn in College avenue where after twenty minutes Tillason made first his appearance followed on his heels by Volkner of Olivet. The two kept well together up to the Tenth street when Tillason sprinted in leaving his contestant a few yards behind. Geib of M. A. C., Vander Visse of Grand Rapids and Stegman of Hope followed almost abreast the first two runners. The other runners came in not so very far apart.

Bringing in their men 1, 4, 10, 11, 12 and 21 the Aggies scored a total of 39 points only the first five men being counted. Olivet's score was made up with 2, 3, 7, 18, 28 and 29 for a total of 59. The Grand Rapids Y runners finished 5, 8, 20, 26 and 27 for a total of 71 barely beating out Hope which scored 80 with the following men: Stegman, 6,

Van Bronkhorst 16, Anker 17, Tellman 19, Tanis 22, and Dollenberg 23, the inability of Verberg to run wrecking havoc in the local school's chances. Muskegon high school winners last year, scored in the following order 9, 14, 15, 24, 25 and 30 making a total of 87.

The winners, who won both the gold watch and the Merchant Trophy were very proud of their prizes and the gift of the Holland business men adorn the walls of the Farmer's gymnasium at Lansing, when it comes back to Holland where the parties are by contract bound to compete for it again, until the time of ten years has elapsed.

After a few days rest the local team will at once go in training for the cross country race to be held May 14th from Grand Rapids to Holland. The locals last year were victorious in the race winning the handsome Jarvis trophy, but the race last Saturday has shown up the Grand Rapids Y runners in much better shape. In addition to this race an invitation has been received to a free relay race to be held at Grand Rapids May 20th under the auspices of the Grand Rapids "Y" management.

The college baseball nine have added another victory to their list this time by defeating the Holland High by a score of 6 to 3. Hadden pitched for the High school and Levan and Roggens twirled the horse hide for Hope. The college players were not in their usual form but managed, nevertheless to keep the High boys down.

The Fumigators lost the factory indoor baseball championship last Friday night when the Shoemen of the Lyceum league beat them by a score of 13 to 7. Ray and Batema were the winning battery who scored a total of 15 strike outs and allowing 14 hits as against Vereeke and Lievense, the opposing battery who secured 5 strike outs and allowed 19 hits.

Frank Burns of Boyne City, defended his title as middle weight champion of Michigan Thursday by scoring two out of three falls on Geo. Potter of Grand Rapids. Potter won the first fall in four minutes with a half nelson and crotch hold, and Burns took the second and third falls on the scissors hold in 3 and 4 minutes respectively.

Bunching hits in the third inning the Kings defeated the Zeeland Independents Monday evening by a score of 6 to 5, the game being one of the shortest of the season. Nash and Hamelink were the battery for the winners, and Nash secured a total of 26 strikeouts. Miller and Vereeke performed for the visitors, securing 18 strikeouts. A large crowd witnessed the game.

Frank Van Ry and Johnny Vos have returned from Muskegon, where they went to arrange for a ten round bout between Vos and Young Perry which will be held on April 23.
